

JOLLE@UGA®

JOURNAL OF LANGUAGE & LITERACY EDUCATION

Sarah's First Visit to Shanghai

Lei Jiang

Oh dear! My God! So why does Chinese cuisine have so weird names! See Chicken without sex (童子鸡)?
That's too erotic...What? It's pullet in sauce!
So what's contained in Lungs of Husband-Wife's (夫妻肺片)?
Sliced beef in Chili sauce? I'm scared to death!
Well, Tofu made by a woman full of freckles (麻婆豆腐),
I see her face when eating this spicy dish.
I'll never eat this Slobbering chicken (口水鸡)!
Oh wait, again? It's steamed with Chili sauce?
How glad on earth are Four glad balls (四喜丸子)? You must be kidding—only pork in balls. Here comes
The ants are climbing trees (蚂蚁上树)! I'm really sad when served with vermicelli fried with pork.
Behind these names there're stories?!—Oh, Chinese!

Lei Jiang is a PhD student in Education at the University of Georgia. His research interests include applied linguistics, linguistic minority education, mixed methods research, and poetry writing. He obtained his master's degree in Education from Harvard University, and B.A. in English and Economics from Fudan University (China). He once served as an instructor in Chinese at Harvard University, and won Distinction in Teaching Awards. He can be reached at lei.jiang25@uga.edu