

JOLLE@UGA[®]

JOURNAL OF LANGUAGE & LITERACY EDUCATION

God-Read English

Lei Jiang

Dude, that's easy, really easy:

Acquisitive means being not inquisitive at all,
like invaluable is the antonym of valuable.
Just assume unassuming means not supposing,
like unyielding for yield.

Creek is the plural form of crook, the same as feet for foot.
Recapitulation is the noun of repetitively capitulate, just like renounce means to denounce again; Oh by the way,
here denouement is a typo of denouncement.

Sober means a person who always sobs,
much as solder refers to someone who has been sold.
Sedulous is the adjective for seduce,
similar to the case of deciduous for decide.

Censure is a new buzzword, used when the result of a census is sure;
Also epicure, epic-cure, used if a doctor can cure any disease.

And these common words are much easier:

Flit means to toy with ("flirt"),
discrete means careful ("discreet"),
impervious means arrogant ("imperious"),
intimidate means friendly ("intimate"),
taunt means to boost ("tout"),
and spring is venal ("vernal").

See? English is precise. Don't be a sober.
Be smart and deciduous like me:
Find the logic of the language and,
you know everything.

Lei Jiang is a PhD student in Education at the University of Georgia. His research interests include applied linguistics, linguistic minority education, mixed methods research, and poetry writing. He obtained his master's degree in Education from Harvard University, and B.A. in English and Economics from Fudan University (China). He once served as an instructor in Chinese at Harvard University, and won Distinction in Teaching Awards. He can be reached at lei.jiang25@uga.edu